Our Mission

A nonprofit grief and healing organization dedicated to helping parents and families living with the loss of a child

MESSAGE FROM COPE'S PRESIDENT

As the President of the COPE Foundation, I want to welcome you to our 20th anniversary Annual Report. It is amazing and impressive that a dream about her daughter inspired our founder, Lilly Julien, to start a support group to help her and other families survive after they had lost a child. Richard and Judy Berg and Patti Greenberg joined Lilly in starting COPE, not only to continue helping themselves, but because of a shared commitment to provide help for other grieving families. That is our mission—helping parents and families living with the loss of a child. But our vision, the one that drives our board, staff, volunteers, and supporters to continue to sustain COPE, is that no parent should have to take this journey alone.

An Annual Report has several goals: First, it is a document that lets everyone learn more about who we are and what we do; then, it is an opportunity to keep our finances transparent; and lastly, it is a document of gratitude—for what our bereaved parents, families and children did this past year, for the work of our staff and volunteers, and of course, a thank you to our supporters.

In this summary of 2019, our proud two-decade anniversary year, you will get a chance to read about our groups, our programs, the children and staff of COPE's Camp Erin® NYC and the names of all the families, foundations and businesses that supported COPE this year. Take a look at our photos, take the time to read the words of our staff and families, and join me in saying a thank you to our supporters.

Well, that is what I wrote a couple of months ago in the middle of February. I knew there was an enemy approaching. I had just returned from a trip to the midwest, a major hub for international flights from Asia to Europe. I saw the masks on the faces of travelers, a lot of them. I was nervous

MESSAGE FROM COPE'S PRESIDENT

I had flown out to meet my newborn granddaughter in early February and, just to be safe for her, I wore gloves and a mask on the flight, and brought antiseptic wipes to clean everything around me. I thought coming back to New York would make me feel safer. But every day after has only made me more fearful. We are in this pandemic, where our stores have empty shelves, when hoarding and long lines leave many without enough food and medicine, and work and shelter are out of reach for more and more. Daily statistics of death rates, in our communities and our country, bring despair and remind me of the nightly tally of soldiers killed during the worst years of the war in Vietnam. I guess this, too, is a war.

Nevertheless, COPE has taken every step possible to protect our families, our programs and our organization. We moved quickly to provide virtual programming for our families, submitting applications for federal small business grants and loans as soon as our bank gave us the green light. As of this writing, we have cancelled all our spring events and our major fundraiser, our Golf Outing, and we must work hard now to reach the financial goals we need to sustain COPE.

I want to make sure we keep going. I want our families, our friends, our schools, our hospitals and community programs, the amazing professionals who staff them all, our firefighters and police officers, our merchants, in front of and behind the scenes; all the women and men who are risking their lives for ours, to be okay. I want COPE to be strong and continue to support the families who need us now, and sadly, the many more who will need us in the future.

With thoughts for health, strength, safety and love, for all of us,

Sandy

Sandra R. Wolkoff, PhD, LCSW-R
Board President, COPE Foundation

2019 HIGHLIGHTS

COPE offers many opportunities for grieving families to meet, talk, learn and heal. The core of our programs focuses on support groups where our families meet regularly in professionally facilitated groups, and workshops that address the unique needs of bereaved parents and families.

Support Groups:

- Nearly 200 adults participated in COPE group support services during the year.
- Support groups were held in 12 locations on Long Island and in Manhattan including ten parent groups for the loss of a child and two sibling loss groups.
- Our infant and pregnancy loss support group for mothers was reactivated.
- Two teen support groups continued with 11 participants.

Workshops and Family Gatherings:

- Healing workshops were held throughout the year and included Writing, Art, Mindfulness & Meditation and Yoga.
- Our new, successful COPE Brunch and Stress Reduction programs were introduced with over 35 families participating.

COPE'S Camp Erin® NYC:

- Eighth annual Camp Erin NYC and parent retreat had 56 campers, 30 parents & caregivers and 70 volunteers.
- Our second annual Camp Erin NYC Holiday Party was held again in December.

Community Support and Partnerships:

- COPE consulted with several Long Island and NYC school districts this year to provide grief support and trauma education to staff and students.
- Consultation was provided to Hofstra University's School of Public Health and Molloy College's School of Nursing and Health Sciences to offer sensitivity training to support grieving members of their community.
- A new partnership was formed with the Family and Children's Association to provide support and education to the "SNUG" ("guns" spelled backwards) gun violence prevention program.
- The Family Advisory Committee started and our Program Planning Committee revitalized - both focused on family feedback and guidance in our work.
- "Grief 101" presentations - a bereavement training developed by our clinical director - continued at libraries across Long Island.

COPE SPOTLIGHTS

Facilitator Marilyn Kohn, LMSW

"I am proud to be the first licensed social worker that COPE's founders hired back in 2008. I started by facilitating just one group and now I work with four groups every month.

In the past, I worked with families in a school for children with special needs, as well as facilitating bereavement groups for various types of loss. I also have a private practice for individuals and families.

It has been an honor and privilege to be part of COPE and watch it grow into the outstanding nonprofit organization it is today."

COPE IS PROUD TO RECOGNIZE MARILYN'S IMPACT AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS WITH THE PROFESSIONAL SERVICE AWARD AT OUR NEXT GOLF OUTING.

And from some of our COPE family members...

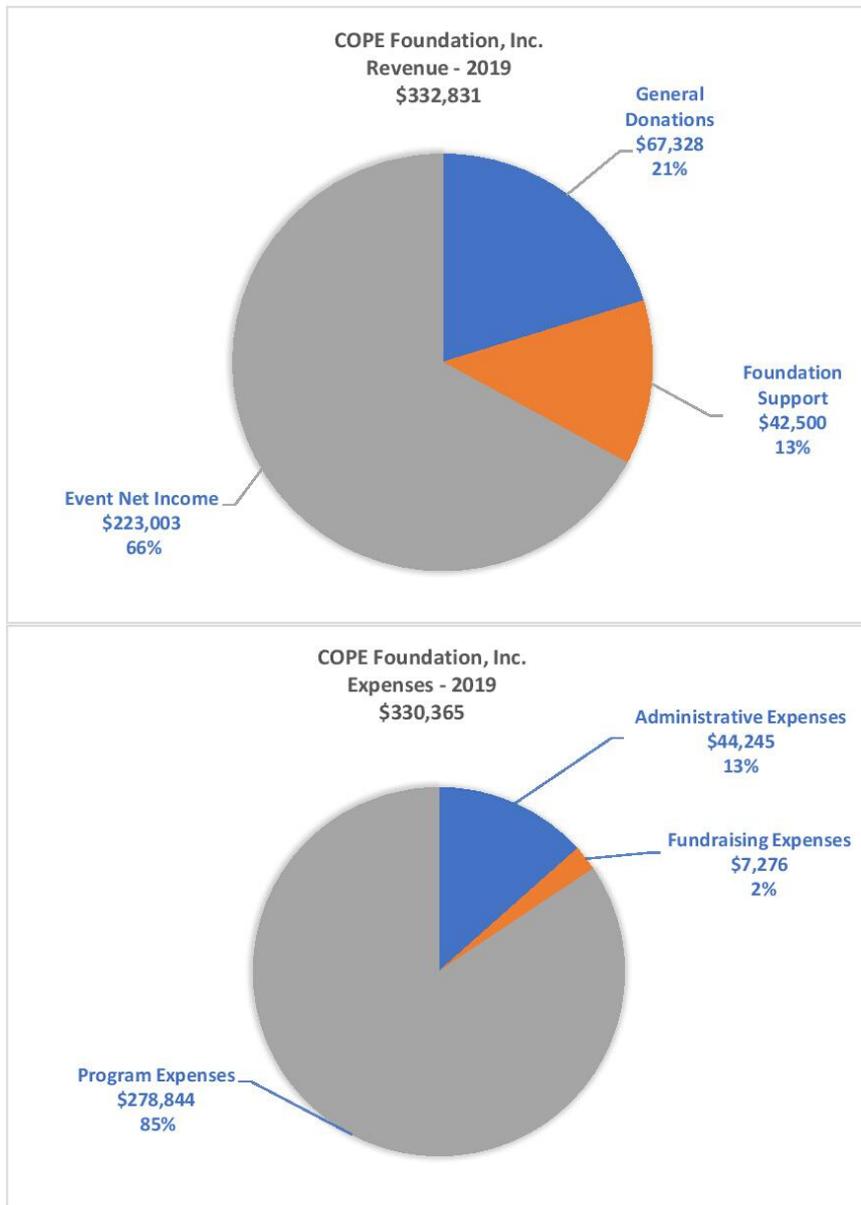

"My name is Al Carlo and there are thousands of parents like me who are living their lives torn apart as well. I was desperate for help. Sometimes questioning my life. Why am I here? Why should I stay here? Then I found COPE. COPE is a bereavement and grief support program for parents who have lost a child. This next part is important! COPE saved my life." - (COPE Dad)

"Staying connected is vital. Talking to the group really helped me and gave me a connection with the people that are grieving for our children." - SS (COPE Mom)

"Not going to the meetings makes me feel like I was losing that friendship and closeness. The conference call made me feel like people were still listening and still there. A sense of security I guess I could say. My heart goes out to all of us and I want to thank everyone for listening, even if it's the same story over and over. We are there for each other and that's a blessing." - TG (COPE Mom)
